Credit Courses May Be Offered

By FRED ENDRES
Editor

A recommendation has been presented to President William T. Jerome which would allow juniors and seniors to take on course a semester for pass, no-pass credit, according to Dr. Paul F. Leedy, provost.

The recommendation was submitted by the University Academic Council. It requires Dr. Jerome's signature, and would take effect next fall on a two-year, experimental basis.

Juniors and seniors would be able to register for one course each semester on this basis, as long as the course was not in the student's major or minor or part of a group requirement, Dr. Leedy said.

President Jerome said yesterday he had received the recommendation and that he would be pleased to accept it.

The proposed plan, passed by the Academic Council last month, also could be implemented in the summer school sessions of 1967, Dr. Leedy said.

Students wishing to participate in the pass, no-pass program would sign up during the registration period in the spring or fall.

Once a student selected a course on this basis, Dr. Leedy explained, he could not drop it and pick up another course on a regular grading system, or change from a course with a regular grading system to a pass, no-pass course.

Dr. Leedy said the Council was making the recommendation to "encourage students to broaden their interests and horizons."

"We won't be setting up a list of specific pass, no-pass courses," Dr. Leedy said, "since they will be in the electives area."

This will mean some courses could contain students taking the course for regular grade credit and students taking it on the pass-fail basis, Dr. Leedy explained.

Kent Students Hit J-School 'Censorship'

KENT (AP) -- The Kent State University Student Senate yesterday accused the head of the journalism school of censorship against the university's newspaper, the Kent Stater.

In a resolution unanimously adopted Monday, the Senate accused Dr. Murvin H. Perry, chairman of the university's School of Journalism of what it termed "flagrant abuse of authority vested in him."

The Senate action came after the six-member student-faculty Publications Police Committee voted unanimously to cancel a supplement--The College--in the Kent Stater.

The committee contended the supplement would duplicate in purpose and content the function of the existing Kent Quarterly.

ALPHA GAMMA Delta and Sigma Phi Epsilon were announced last night as the winners of the Alpha Phi Omega Beauty and the Beast contest. Netting a total of $500, the Alpha Gam total was $145.60 and the Sig Eps' had $25.17. Certificates were presented to the winning candidates at the Cleveland Browns' Charities basketball game.

Harbison Elected IFPC Adviser As New Qualifications Announced

By JAMES TREEGER
Issue Editor

Kent Harbison, representing Delta Upsilon social fraternity, was elected Interfraternity Pledge Council Adviser at Monday night's Interfraternity Council Meeting.

Harbison, although not nominated for the position of IFPC advisor at last week's IFC meeting, was nominated when the previously named candidates, Craig Procarlo, Steve Arshan, James Treeger, and Steve Taflinger, all declined the position after qualifications for the office were announced by IFC president Steve O'Bryan.

The qualifications had not been announced at the previous meeting.

Harbison's new job will entail working with representatives of the 18 fraternities on campus. These representatives are all pledges of the fraternities and as such do not have a governing body of their own.

The IFPC studies subjects relating to the growth of the fraternity system on campus and undertakes projects designed to benefit both the campus and the community.

In other action at the meeting, council members were reminded that open rush for fraternities over 70 members would end today and that open rush for houses under 70 members would terminate at 5 p.m. Friday, March 18.

Robert France, executive vice-president of IFC announced that Robert Clasen, of Sigma Chi, has been assigned a special project that would entail working closely with the University Social Policy Committee.

It is the contention of the committee and of council that because fraternities and sororities are social organizations and in this capacity hold social events, they should be included on the committee.

"It is hoped," Clasen said, "that by being included on the University Social Policy Committee, communications may be improved so that all the fraternities and sororities know what they want us to do and how we should go about doing these things."

Attempting to give support to the student drive to raise money for the new library, the Back-a-Book Campaign, council president O'Bryan named a committee consisting of Steve Arshan, Sonny Ward and Steve Taflinger. The committee will look into different projects that IFC could undertake in order to raise money for the drive.

The weather for today is: sunny and warmer, high around 50. Partly cloudy and a little warmer tonight.

Trustees Accept 8 Resignations, Hire 2

The Board of Trustees has accepted one administrative and seven academic resignations at the University.

The seven academic resignations include:

Eleanor V. Attinello, library instructor; Arthur D. Austin, assistant professor of business administration, effective Aug. 19; Joanne Campbell, library assistant, effective May 16; Rollin G. Eakins, instructor in speech, effective Sept. 1; Helen Gertsen, instructor in education, effective in June; Elizabeth Mannion, instructor in music, effective in June; and Elizabeth Noonan, office assistant in the Graduate School.

In addition, Kurt Zimmerman, men's residence halls program director, has resigned effective next Tuesday.

The Board also approved two new administrative appointments: Marjorie Schaefer, office assistant in the Admissions Office, and Helen Russell, second assistant manager of the Falcon's Nest.

Five changes in administrative assignments were received by the Board including:

John Exner, resigned as chairman of department of psychology, effective end of current academic year; Saroja Krishnan, library assistant, appointed for period from March 1 through June 30; F. Lee Miesle, reappointed chairman of department of speech, effective in September; and Dwight R. Miller, from assistant to associate professor of education.

All-MAC Selection

BOWLING GREEN'S 6-8 sophomore Walter Piatkowski was named today to the All-Mid-American basketball team for 1966. Piatkowski won the conference scoring crown with an 18.9 average. His best effort came against Marshall when he flipped in 44 points. Details on the rest of the squad are on page 8.

What Now?

Much protest was heard from the state legislature a few weeks ago on the impracticality of the proposed student center. One of the biggest blasts was against the building's financing.

Student fees, it was argued, should not be used to construct this building. The fees, however, according to University business manager, Elton Ringer, are not additional fees, but merely those which have been a part of the students' incidental fees for years. And the building will house most student-affiliated offices, anyway.

This stand by the legislators wasn't valid, because if the University was raising the funds itself, and not asking the state for money, why should our statesman question our plans?

So, they called the proposed circular building a "monstrosity," and said that it was just an attempt to be "different."

President Jerome explained, "The design ties in with the long-range plans for Bowling Green and on a square-foot basis, I don't see how anyone could object." He went to point out that the circular design would permit more efficient use of space.

Our representatives in Columbus then tried to say that the bids would surely be higher than the estimates and thus be impractical. But the bids, as announced at the Board of Trustees meeting last Friday afternoon, again proved to be in the University's favor. Estimates were $1,893,000 and the total of the bids came out more than $150,000 less, at $1,737,239.

We cannot help but wonder what, if anything, the state legislators can or will say now against the Student Services Building. Or will it remain just a "monstrosity" to them always?

Responsibility

From the Daily Texan
University of Texas

Gone are the days of torchlight parades for campus politicians, massive marches on the Capitol and rigged cheerleader elections. Election turnout is the same as ever--appallingly small, but in the olden days at least a portion of the student body seemed to care about the university's brand of personal politics.

Student government has gone "responsible." Candidates and electorate no longer care about the froth that once consumed so much sound and fury.

This trend toward seriousness could be for the better, but unfortunately the Student Assembly and Students' Association are still geared to the days when somebody really cared about getting his best friend appointed to the sweetheart nominee appeals board subcommittee.

Today students are asking for a role in the governing of the university. They are willing to sit through hours of droning Regents meetings, plow through acres of administrative red tape, delve into important but unspectacular aspects of University policy.

Student leaders have approached the Board of Regents, asking for seats on some of the policy-making committees, and the Regents have shown a willingness to consider their requests.

This plea for a voice in university affairs is a plea for the very life of student government. For if students cannot have a significant voice within the university they will attempt to influence it from the outside through such methods as demonstration and unionization.

If student government is not granted a greater degree of power, fewer and fewer outstanding university students will be attracted to it. Even now, independent groups attract many potential leaders by confronting significant issues such as integration, American foreign policy and academic ills which student government most often ignores.

We hope this year's campaign platforms will reflect thoughtful suggestions for reform, rather than tired promises to solve the parking problem and hold regular office hours. There has been a change in attitude among thoughtful elements of the student body.

But if student government does not herald--or at least reflect--this change it will alienate itself even more from potential leaders and lose its opportunity to articulate and help solve the University's problems.

More Polling Places

To the editor:

"We want to encourage more people to vote in the upcoming elections, but polling places in the upperclass housing units wouldn't help any."

"If we put voting precincts in the housing units, we would be spoon-feeding the students into voting. If they want to vote, let them come to the Union or to University Hall (where upper-class polling places have been in the past)."

"Fifty per cent of the people in the dormitories don't care anyway."

"Sure we want to do something about apathy but voting booths in housing units wouldn't help."

Depressing, pessimistic statements these are. Not the kind of statements you'd expect to hear at a public university in the heart of the United States, but I heard them last week from members of the elections board, the five-member student group that administers elections here at the University.

The only half-way encouraging words that I heard when the case for voting precincts in the dormitories and the fraternity and sorority houses was presented were that elections board would "look into it and maybe next year...."

Haven't you heard that far too many times--"Let's move in inches rather than in big meaningful steps."

Or this--"Well, we know there is lack of student interest in campus government, but there is nothing we can do about it."

Sure, elections board would have to increase the number of precinct workers by about one third and make some other functional adjustments.

But I feel that the extra work put in on those adjustments would be well worth the effort and would be, for once, a serious attempt to stimulate student interest and participation in the election.

When the plan was presented there was a whole month left before the elections, which seemed more than ample time to make the necessary preparations.

Instead of action I got "maybe next year." Do you ever get tired of "maybe next year?" I do and am.

A Challenge

To the editor:

One cannot help but feel that the collection of trivialities, irrelevancies, and total lack of comprehension of issues, contained in Miss Thoma's letter to the News must be exposed, and the mythical ideas contained therein exploded for all to see.

Miss Thoma asks why women have not brought questions before their proper AWS representatives if they do not like certain rules and regulations.

She then proceeds to answer her own question by accusing the University women of lazy ("pardon me, apathetic") behavior.

How many chances does this organization require? They have had the chance to show how just and democratic they are, and the results are in for all to see. They have failed totally and completely at every level, and in every case where individual rights are in question.

One may ask to whom has it been proven that corridor meetings are the "best means of communication between AWS officials and the women." Certainly not the women!

The all-campus elections seem to function fairly adequately without forced attendance at nominating and election proceedings.

Miss Thoma is evidently oblivious to the fact that in a free society one has the choice of non-participation as well as involvement.

Finally, let me offer a chance to Miss Thoma, Miss Althof, and Miss Peiblow to show that they have at least some democratic ideals. I, along with Miss Williams and Mr. Schlatter, challenge these three women to a full and frank debate on the issues involved in this controversy.

We are willing to debate the issues in the presence of as many students and faculty members as would attend, at any time at any location on this campus.

One may only hope that these women have the courage and fortitude to back up what they say by an acceptance of this clear challenge.

English Is English Is English?

By GRACE PHENEGER
Columnist

Professor Higgins in "My Fair Lady" lamented the fact that the English failed to teach their children how to speak, i.e. to enunciate correctly.

This writer is more prone to lament the fact that the Americans have failed to teach their children how to write intelligible sentences.

Freshman English teachers read all manner of weird and peculiar sentences. We see everything from indefinite pronoun referents to misplaced modifiers to constructions that absolutely defy description. Because of the structural errors, we accumulate quite a garden of misinformation.

From one student, I learned that "college is an institution the purpose of which is an education to broaden your knowledge and increase your earnings."

Furthermore, "college implies earning an education and at the same time having fun and making friends."

A colleague of mine discovered that "the first step in the process of cleaning a bulk milk tank is to drain all of the excess milk, usually left at the bottom of the tank, out, and rinse it thoroughly with a hose."

I am still wondering where the "excess milk" is when it is not at the bottom of the tank. I also question whether it is really necessary to rinse the milk thoroughly with a hose.

One student provided an interesting bit of information concerning the occurrences in a certain off-campus institution where "most of the patrons were just sitting there with their full pitchers of beer trying to carry on intelligent conversations with the people sitting around the table."

One can at least hope that the pitchers communicated more adequately than the student did.

Corresponding to the faulty sentence structures are incorrect or imprecise word usages. College slang has given to certain meanings to words that are quite different from their lexical meanings.

When one considers the fact that the writing in freshman comp courses is supposed to be free of slang expressions, the intended meaning of certain words found in themes is indeed unclear.

One male student noted that the girls at the Bunny Party held by a fraternity during rush had "the toughest bodies" he had ever seen.

Since he was not supposed to be using college jargon, I was forced to conclude that the girls could better have been dubbed "elephants" than "bunnies."

Spelling errors only complicate the situation. I was once told by a student that a certain man "owned a lot of propriety." The intended word was apparently "property."

Why can't the English teach their children how to write before they get to college?

Students To Spend Summer in Salzburg

Applications are now being accepted for the nine-week German Summer Session to be held in Salzburg, Austria.

Extensive travel in Germany and Austria is also planned for participants in the program.

Departure is planned for July 6 from New York to Munich. The group will proceed on a three-day bus tour to Venice and then go to Salzburg.

The summer course will consist of two "semesters," the first July 11 to Aug. 6 and the second from Aug. 8 to Aug. 27.

While at Salzburg, the students will have Thursdays and Sundays free. The institutes sponsors excursions on free days to places of cultural interest near Salzburg such as Hallen Salt Mine, and Eisriesenwelt/Weren, the largest ice cave in the world.

These side excursions are optional, but the cost is included in the budget.

The minimum requirement for admission include completion of six semester hours of college German or the equivalent.

At Salzburg the participants of this program may earn six semester hours of credit. The program requires 16-20 hours of classes per week.

The total cost of the trip is $975 which includes air travel to Europe from New York and return, room, and breakfast in Salzburg, tuition (out-of-state residents fee $100 additional), insurance, all scheduled excursions, meals, lodging, fares and tips while on trips.

The students will reside with German families while classes are in session.

After the sessions a nine day tour is scheduled from Salzburg to the point of departure, Hamburg. Areas visited will include the Bavarian castle country, the Black Forest, and the Rhineland.

The group will return on Sept. 7.

Dr. Herbert J. Gauerke, professor of German and Russian, 210 University Hall, has the necessary application forms.

Students must register for the summer session by May 22.

Registration can also be completed by mail by filling out the application form included in the summer catalog.

Passports must be obtained in the student's home county, or from the Wood County courthouse in Bowling Green. Immunization is handled by the University Health Center.

Theatre Players To Dramatize Aladdin Fable

Magic lamps, mysterious genies and mischievous characters are a few of the highlights promised this weekend in the University Theatre's annual children's play "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp."

Directed by Dr. Lois A. Cheney, instructor in speech, the play will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Both performances will be in the Joe E. Brown Theatre. The play concerns the adventures and misadventures of young Aladdin (played by Ken Neuenschwander), the son of a poor tailor.

Aladdin falls in love with the princess Adora (Maureen Brigham) but before he can win her, an evil magician (Roger Sixon) tricks him into stealing a fortune.

Adora also suffers from the schemes of this villain. She is kidnapped and held for ransom from her father, a pompous Sultan (Thomas Rawski).

Aladdin is blamed for her disappearance but manages to rescue her and to destroy the magician with a dose or two of tricks and magic.

Mary Ann Brohard, Alberta Lintescume, Connie Steed, and Jay Kettler round out the cast.

SIMPLE AS...

ADVERTISING

doesn't "cost" -- it "pays."
A regular program of advertising in the B-G NEWS will pay dividends at the cash register in increased sales from University students, faculty members, and administration personnel.

BUYING

power of the University students is tremendous. One survey indicates each student spends an average of $600 per year outside of room, board and tuition. With more than 10,000 enrolled at BGSU -- that means more than $6,000,000 per year!

COVERAGE

of the University market is assured by regular use of the B-G NEWS. About 9,000 copies are distributed four days a week on the BGSU campus. NO OTHER PUBLICATION REACHES THE UNIVERSITY MARKET LIKE THE B-G NEWS. For information call the News advertising department, University Extension 3344.

Johnson Asks Pay Raise For Government Workers

WASHINGTON (AP)--President Johnson asked Congress yesterday to approve a pay boost of 3.2 per cent for 1.8 million government employees.

He coupled the request with an appeal that it should not be changed to exceed its 3.2 per cent guideline, which is designed to keep pay raises in line with increased productivity of workers.

Mr. Johnson said the cost of the pay boost would be $485 million a year and would become effective next Jan. 1.

In a message to Congress, the President said direct salary increases would average 2.8 per cent. The remainder would be for fringe benefits, such as improvements in the retirement system and increased government contributions for health benefits.

Some 700,000 blue-collar workers would not be directly affected, as their pay schedules are reviewed annually and adjusted to bring wages in line with those for similar work in their localities.

The increases Mr. Johnson recommended would range from 1 per cent to 4.5 per cent. Those benefiting from the boost would include about 88 per cent of all postal workers and more than 470,000 civil service employees in the lower grades.

Under the proposal, higher increases would go to those in the upper grades, where Mr. Johnson said workers are hardest to recruit and pay is now below private industry for comparable jobs.

The President urged government employees and the leaders of their organizations to exercise "restraint" and not press for bigger increases. He said federal employees have a "direct stake" in the government's effort to keep prosperity without endangering economic stability.

Mr. Johnson asked Congress to take into account "considerations of utmost importance not only to federal workers but to wage earners of the nation as a whole." He listed these as the wage and price guideposts and sound responsible fiscal policy.

According to the President's proposal, .5 per cent of the pay increase would automatically go to raise from 6.5 per cent to 7 per cent of the employees contribution to the retirement system. The government would also increase its contribution.

Mr. Johnson also suggested retirement at age 55 without reduction in annuity for employees with 30 years service.

For workers who die, become disabled or leave federal employment before becoming eligible for retirement, benefits to their credit would be transferred to the social security system.

Mr. Johnson said the effective date of other important adjustments in the retirement system should be deferred for at least another year.

These would include extending medicare to federal civilian employees, and continuing benefits for surviving children of deceased federal employees under 22, who are continuing their education. Benefits now are discontinued at 18.

Mr. Johnson told Congress that the measures he recommended "meet the test of fairness to our employees and meet the test of economic responsibility."

"If the government is to exercise continued leadership in the fight for price stability, then it must continue to practice what it preaches," Mr. Johnson said. "The government has the added responsibility of not contributing to inflation by its own actions."

"The largest employer has an undeniable responsibility to lead, and not merely to follow, in instituting and adhering to model employment practices," the President commented.

By the close of this fiscal year, the total compensation for 2.5 million federal civilian employees will be $20.4 billion a year, Mr. Johnson said.

The President, the Congress and federal employees themselves cannot fail to give the most careful consideration of every adjustment in pay, retirement, and health benefits, said Mr. Johnson.

"Each proposed adjustment must not only be merited, but it should be consistent with the principles of sound business," he said.

Campus Calendar

The Arnold Air Society Pledge meeting will be held at 7 tonight in 259 Memorial Hall.

Omega Phi Alpha service sorority is participating in the United Campus Appeal by collecting donations from commuters. Collections will be made in the Union Lobby from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow and Friday.

Housing representatives for the United Campus Appeal are reminded that collection nights are from 7 to 9 tonight, tomorrow, Saturday and Monday in the Wayne Room.

Miss Evelyn Benjamin will be the guest speaker for the Bowling Green Chapter of the Ohio Home Economics Association meeting to be held in the Alumni Room at 6:30 tonight.

Miss Benjamin will speak on "The Home Economist's Role in a Community Program."

The admission test applications for graduate study in business will be available April 2.

Registration forms and fees must reach the Educational Training Service two weeks before the testing date.

"A Place in the Kingdom" will be the topic of a brief Lenten service to be held in Prout Chapel at 6:30 tonight.

These weekly services are sponsored by the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

Results of tryouts held last week by Orchesis, the University's modern dance group, will be posted tomorrow.

The Newman Foundation will sponsor a Communion Breakfast this Sunday following the 9 a.m. Mass. Father John P. Meehan, a Maryknoll Missionary, will be the speaker. His talk is entitled "The Christian Commitment in the Modern World."

The public is invited.

There will be a general meeting of all Catholic students at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Newman Club Auditorium.

Biological Probes into Space" is the subject of Dr. Irwin I. Oster's talk to Beta Beta Beta, biology honorary society, at 6:30 tonight in 204 Mosely Hall.

Dr. Oster will tell about various experiments which will be conducted as part of the NASA biological satellite. This satellite will be launched next fall and will carry several of Dr. Oster's experiments.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

Beta Beta Beta will hold Biology 110 help sessions every Monday evening from 6 until 7 in 204 Mosely. Students are invited to come and bring their questions.

New developments in automatic thermostatic controls for gas ranges will be discussed by Miss Janet Felmeth, Home Economics Director of Robershaw Controls Company, before the Home Economics Club March 30.

The Lutheran Student Association will hold coffee hours today from 2:30 to 5 p.m. in the Capitol Room.

Jean Horn, Lutheran campus associate, will be the hostess.

"Spain Today" is the subject of an illustrated travel lecture to be held tonight at 7:30 in the Dogwood Suite by Dr. Michael Flys, chairman of the department of romance languages.

Debaters Lose At Detroit, OSU

University debate teams suffered 14 losses in 17 rounds of Competition in tournaments at Detroit and Columbus last weekend.

A team comprised of Judy Campbell and Paul Hoeffel won three rounds and lost three rounds at Wayne State University in Detroit. They debated both the affirmative and negative sides of the proposition, "Resolved: that law enforcement agencies in the United States should be given greater freedom in the investigation and prosecution of crime."

Debating the same proposition were James Bates and David Garick, who won one round and lost five.

The University of Minnesota, the University of Maryland, and Princeton University all had perfect records of six wins and no losses to lead the tournament.

Traveling to Ohio State University from Bowling Green to compete in a two-man championship tournament were Greg Gardner and David Klumpp, who posted a record of no wins and six losses.

The team will enter a tournament at Miami University Friday and Saturday.

Grant To Be Used For Study, Culture

The Alumni Association has granted $13,900 to University students for scholarships, grants-in-aid and cultural programs. Undergraduate scholarships totaling $1,500 and graduate grants-in-aid totaling $2,400 have been made available.

Five $100 scholarships will be awarded in each of the three undergraduate colleges.

James E. Hof, director of alumni relations, said that the recipient will be known as "alumni scholars" and are to be selected by the individual college deans or by a committee of faculty members from each college to be appointed by the dean.

Preference will be given to those applicants who are sons or daughters of University alumni, Mr. Hof said.

A grant-in-aid of $400 will be made in each of the following graduate areas: accounting, mathematics, history, psychology, American studies and business administration.

Mr. Hof said that recipients must have received their undergraduate degrees from the University and must plan to continue as full-time graduate students.

The Alumni Association also donated $10,000 to be used for University scholarships and cultural programs.

Mr. Hof said that $2,500 is to be used to establish an Alumni Lecture Series designed to attract notable speakers to the University.

Another $1,000 will go to the School of Music to support off-campus tours by performing student groups. The gift also provided $200 for the purchase of art pieces from student art exhibits.

Four grants will be awarded to foreign students from $1,600 of the Alumni Association gift. Another $800 will be used for undergraduate grants-in-aid to assist the speech department.

Five $100 scholarships will also be appropriated to the Colleges of Education, Liberal Arts, and Business Administration for undergraduate students. Six $400 grants will be awarded to graduate students.

AP World News Roundup

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)-- Semi-private Youngstown University was invited yesterday to seek state university status.

Governor Rhodes extended the invitation in officiating at groundbreaking for a $5 million science and engineering building on the campus.

The structure is being built and will be owned by the state, which will lease it to the university for 50 years.

Youngstown University evolved from a Y M C A night school under leadership of Dr. Howard Jones, the president. He and the Governor turned the first shovel full of earth.

WASHINGTON (AP)-- The government moved yesterday to halt future sale of all non-prescription anti-biotic throat lozenges.

The Food and Drug Administration said the lozenges and some other anti-biotic preparations also banned are not effective as claimed on their labels.

However, an FDA spokesman said that no recall of the products is planned and drug stores and manufacturers may use up stocks on hand which already have FDA approval.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)-- The faculty of the Literary College of the University of Michigan has adopted a resolution criticizing the draft policies of the Selective Service System.

The resolution urged that students be drafted on a random basis rather than according to results of aptitude tests to be administered nationally by the Selective Service.

The professors said such tests would discriminate against students who entered college with weak academic preparation, possibly due to low incomes of their families.

WASHINGTON (AP)-- An Asian expert said yesterday that Communist China would risk a major war if it felt its vital interests were threatened.

Professor A. Doak Barnett, appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged that the U.S. exercise great restraint in Viet Nam to avoid provoking a clash with the Red Chinese.

But the acting head of Columbia University's East Asian Institute also said that if the U.S. got out of Viet Nam, there soon would be serious problems of Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

SAIGON (AP)--U.S. warplanes yesterday raked widespread targets in Communist North Viet Nam with a record assault of several hundred sorties.

A U.S. spokesman said four planes were lost.

In South Viet Nam, air operations included a strike by B-52 bombers from Guam on what was described as a Viet Cong Military headquarters, 35 miles northeast of Saigon.

Meanwhile, the ground war tapered off, sources said.

UP Meets With Pros And Cons

By TIM BRANDYBERRY
Staff Writer

The University Party has taken the necessary steps to become an official university organization. The party has been recognized by Student Council and is presenting a slate of candidates for the up-coming election.

The machinery of the party has been set in motion. Where the party system will go from here can only be determined by student response.

What is the reaction of the students to the recently formed University Party? Do they feel that it will in any way strengthen the student body?

Charlene Phillips, senior in the College of Education, said, "The recently formed University Party has been accepted by many candidates for Student Body offices. Not only is it desirable to have the backing of such an organization, but also many of their policies have merit. But does the University Party leave room for the establishment of a second political party? Few would challenge research into areas that need improvement. Few would disagree with a policy of progress."

CHARLENE PHILLIPS

"In order to incite the rise of an opposition party, real issues must be created. Such issues are created not merely by general policies but by specific proposals as to procedures for the implementation of such policies."

Charles Bass, junior in the College of Liberal Arts, said, "I feel that there has been a conspicuous vacuum in student government on our campus. The University Party can play a significant part in filling this void. The University Party also aims to cross all the traditional lines on campus. That is, they hope to unify the many factions that have stood in the way of progress. The proof of this is that, in the coming election, I will be running on the same party slate with many people from many other, even diametrically opposed, factions."

Kay Craig, junior in the College of Education, said, "The ultimate reforms and improvements sponsored by the University Party deserve much merit. However, in order for the party to function effectively it is necessary that it gain the support of at least the majority of the student body. Once this support has been won it definitely will strengthen the student body as a whole due to the tremendous cohesion which results from being part of a common group."

KAY CRAIG

Vincent Zaffke, junior in the College of Liberal Arts, said, "A political party system at Bowling Green was an inevitable development of campus government. However, I believe the University Party was originally conceived to counteract the leadership potential developed within the fraternity system."

"Further, I believe that the University Party is making a severe tactical error by presenting a slate of candidates for the upcoming campus election before the party itself has gained sufficient strength, maturity, and organization."

"In addition, the original purpose of this political party, I believe---that of a strong "independent" political machinery---has been thwarted by the penetration of fraternity men and women into the U.P., thus making it a case of the strong growing stronger, and the weak growing weaker. Thus, the original conception of a two-party system cannot work."

Paul Nyitray, freshman in the College of Education, said, "The University Party is a good movement that should strengthen the student body and promote interest in student government. However, I would like to see an opposition party formed."

Larry Bacnik, senior in the College of Education, said, "I feel the University Party is not what it is built up to be. It ignores the individual and supports a certain block of candidates. I don't think that having one party is a very democratic way of running elections. The party support will make the voters bias toward a certain block of candidates; therefore, it puts any opposition to a disadvantage."

"It would seem more democratic to have two or more parties. This election will be a good test to see whether the University Party helps to create a democratic election of responsible officers or whether this will be another over-rated popularity contest."

Barbara Fegley, junior in the College of Education, said "The University Party, I believe, has the potential of becoming a worthwhile and effective organization on campus. Efficiently and effectively organized and promoted, it can foster unity in the student body.

"In addition, it can serve as a training arena for leadership and political organization as well as a useful channel for student opinions and action. The only danger lies in allowing itself to become involved in petty or radical issues."

"Maintaining a useful and rational platform, I believe the party can and will serve as a constructive campus group, beneficial both to the university and to individual students."

Mrs. Oren -- 'That Woman' At Registration Window

By BILL BERMAN
Staff Writer

"Sorry, this section is closed." These are the words heard by every student on campus who has gone through registration. They are terrifying words to most students. It means they might have to change their whole schedule. To let go of their frustrations many of them blame "that woman" in the registration window.

That woman is Mrs. Myrtle Oren.

Mrs. Oren's job entails a lot more than announcing closed sections and answering questions. A large amount of her work involves recording grades, coding applications for registration, registering students, and making out drop and add slips.

"Filling out drop and add slips is an enormous job," said Mrs. Oren. "Right after classes began last fall I processed close to 3,000 slips in three days and they all had to be done by hand."

When pre-registration comes the job really gets trying, Mrs. Oren said.

"I'll undoubtedly see every student on campus during registration. It averages out to about 75 students an hour. That's a lot of students by the end of the day."

"The kids are pretty reasonable on the whole. But I find the seniors are the worst of the classes. By now they ought to know the ropes, but they usually don't."

"If they would only read their catalog and the information given to them before registration, they wouldn't have the trouble they have," she said.

Mrs. Oren admits that she does get grouchy at registration time, but said she feels justified. "Most students stand at my window and demand that I do something for them," she explained.

"If they'd say hello when they came to my window, they would have a lot less trouble. I would just like each student to work in this office one week. Then they'd know what an enormous job this is," Mrs. Oren said.

Mrs. Oren said she is sure her job will get bigger and more complicated as BG's enrollment increases, but she enjoys the work and hopes to be able to cope with its demands in the future.

Undoubtedly, the demands of the future will include the demands of many irate students whose frustrations keep them from seeing beyond the "face in the window."

Penny Renews 'Lost' Tradition

The penny--or at least a penny--is back, and a University tradition has been re-established.

The penny, which can be found in the walk between the Union and Williams Hall is a traditional spot for pinnings of University students.

In late fall of last year, it was discovered that the penny was no longer in the pavement.

But, recently, someone put another penny in the traditional spot--perhaps a sentimental pinmate--or was it a member of the Spirit and Traditions Board?

Realm Of Professors

Dr. William F. Schmeltz, dean of the college of business administration, received his doctor of philosophy degree in economist from Western Reserve University last month.

"Accounting and Management Control Practices in Petroleum Refining," was Dr. Schmeltz's dissertation title. He spent three years collecting and organizing information for the thesis.

The study deals with accounting and management of information problems of refiners and is based on the idea that refining has become a manufacturing rather than a processing industry.

Dr. Schmeltz has been dean of the college since 1960 and has been a member of the faculty since 1946. He is a native of Toledo and graduated from the University of Toledo with a bachelor of business administration degree in 1945.

Dr. Schmeltz received his master of business administration degree from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Dr. Benjamin G. Rosenberg and Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, professors of psychology, are researching family relationships under grants from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Play Tryouts Set Thursday

Tryouts for two one-act plays to be produced by the class in advanced play directing will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday in 105 South Hall, the department of speech announced yesterday.

Parts for three females and one male are available in "Fumed Oak" by Noel Coward. "Hello Out There" by William Saroyan requires four males and two females.

The shows will be presented March 30 in Joe E. Brown Theatre.

Pass this quiz and Eastern will fly you to Florida or 79 other places for half fare.
Any 12 year-old can pass it.

Lindahl, Wood Lead Finmen To 10-4 Slate

By JIM MEIGHAN
Assistant Sports Editor

Be it Gotham City or the Bowling Green natatorium, one can't seem to avoid dynamic duos lately.

Even the Bowling Greenswimming team has come up with a one-two punch which seems impossible to beat and in fact hasn't been.

John Lindahl, the Falcons swimming captain, and breaststroke ace Ron Wood both have proved their invincibility while leading the finmen to one of their best swimming seasons (10-4).

Lindahl has maintained a perfect record in the 200-yard freestyle, while establishing new BG records in that event twice.

Wood has successfully collected 14 first places in 14 dual meets to wind up with a perfect dual meet record in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Both from Trenton, Mich., they have spent the majority of their swimming careers together. Lindahl, who was captain of the Trenton varsity and finished third in 400-yard freestyle at the state high school championships, describes his beginning as "shaky" and not very devoted until his sophomore year.

Wood was even less enthusiastic for swimming in the beginning. "I was a basketball reject," says the most feared breastroker in the Mid-American Conference.

Wood just might have had his mind on basketball all through high school, as Lindahl took most of the early swimming honors. But apparently Wood did some thinking on the subject of swimming, as he finished second in his league and thirteenth in the state in his senior year.

College swimming seems to be where both men found their place in the swimming world.

"I like the 200-yard freestyle the best of all the events; I feel it's the distance I'm personally geared for best," said Lindahl the high school 400 ace.

Wood too favors the 200-yard

breaststroke event, though he's rated as the man to beat in both the MAC 200 and 100-yard events.

Wood, who is noted for his pre-practice clowning, takes swimming and the swimming team pretty seriously.

"I can't think of a better organization on campus," he says.

"Working together for a common goal with all the guys gives the team a special unity. I really believe that the swimming team is the best fraternity on campus."

Lindahl, a major in business administration, feels that swimming can be something especially worthwhile to the individual.

"Swimming, like few sports, puts a tremendous amount of pressure on the individual, it's really the best way I know to exercise the mind and body," he says.

"It's just one sport that you have to be smart, as well as conditioned, to be a winner," continued Lindahl.

The two team leaders agreed on the importance of one man to spark the team to victory.

"Last year at Miami, when John (Lindahl) won the 200-yard freestyle, you could see the whole team come to life to kill a team that was rated even with us," said Wood about the Falcon captain.

"Though it can really make a difference to have a good leader, it's got to be a team effort all the way if your going to bring that victory home," Lindahl added.

Personally both John and Ron have essentially the same goal; to become All-American swimmers, which means being in the top ten swimmers in a particular event according to time.

Whether Lindahl and Wood can supply the team with that extra spark necessary to win the MAC will be determined when BG's dynamic duo and team takes on the bad guys from Western, Kent, Miami, and Ohio U. in this weekend's adventure.

Toronto Will Host Clay-Terrell Fight

TORONTO (AP)--Heavyweight Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell have found a haven for staging their title fight.

Toronto has agreed to stage the bout on March 29th.

Ontario labor minister Leslie Rowntree gave his stamp of approval on the match yesterday.

New York, Chicago, Louisville, Pittsburgh, Montreal, and several other cities have turned down the match since it was first made two months ago.

Most of the fight's unpopularity stems from remarks made by Clay after he was reclassified in the draft. Clay uttered some harsh words about the reclassification before announcing that he would appeal.

At stake when the fighters meet in Toronto will be the heavyweight crown. Clay is recognized as the champion by everyone except the World Boxing Association, which maintains that Terrell is the titleholder.

Clay said he feels Terrell has a better chance of beating him than either Sonny Liston or Floyd Patterson had. Clay explained:

"I'm out of shape. I am not mentally as good as I should be."

He added that he is weighted down with pressures, and said there are more pressures than he had before his previous championship fights.

Clay went on to declare: "I don't say Terrell is going to beat me--I'm still the greatest--but he's got the best chance of all."

All-Stars Top Browns 71-66

The IM All-Stars defeated the Cleveland Browns 71-66 last night in an exhibition basketball game played in Anderson Arena.

Proceeds of the game went to charity.

Bill Redderson and Bob Redd led the Stars with 11 points each.

Dave Scott scored 23 for the losers.

No Favorite In MAC Swim-Offs

A real dog fight figures to develop tomorrow, Friday and Saturday as the University hosts the fourteenth annual Mid-American Conference swimming championships.

Any one of four schools, Bowling Green, Miami, Ohio University or Western Michigan could walk away with all the marbles or finish as low as fourth in the title battle.

Western Michigan has compiled a 4-0 dual meet record in Mid-American competition while Miami is 3-1. Ohio University and Bowling Green trail with 2-2 and 1-3 records respectively while Kent State is 0-4.

A total of eight individual 1965 champions are returning this year to defend their titles. Western Michigan's fine freestyler Ron Pohlonski, who won the 200, 500, and 1,650 freestyle events in record times last season, is the top returning champion.

However, the seven other winners, Miami's backstroke Mark Anderson and freestyler Doug Gray, Ohio's breastroker John Kelly and individual medley swimmers Dick Merritt and George Saldana, plus Western's backstroke, Fred Cutler and butterfly ace John Woods, will also be making their presence felt in BG's natatorium.

Bowling Green doesn't have any returning winners but the Falcons still figure to be in the middle of the title fight because of their fine freestyle strength. BG captain John Lindahl registered a 1:51.5 time in the 200 this year as he nipped Western's Pohlonski in this event in dual competition.

Duane Jastremski, who is the brother of Indiana University's great swimmer Chet Jastremski, figures to be near the top of the heap in both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle.

Ohio University annexed the 1965 crown with 127 points as Western finished second with 123. Bowling Green was third with 83 points while Miami and Kent scored 70 and 10 respectively.

Bowling Green has won six previous championships while Ohio University is next with four titles. Western Michigan has won two while Miami recorded one win. Bowling Green dominated the championships from 1956-60, winning five championships.

Frosh Hoopsters Show Individual Potential

By TOM HINE
Assistant Sports Editor

One might easily assume that members of this year's freshmen basketball team which won only nine of its 19 games will hardly cause varsity coach Warren Scholler to jump for joy when they show up for practice next season.

But don't bet on it.

They obviously didn't burn up the MAC this year, winning only three of nine conference contests, but many observers attribute this to a lack of teamwork through a good bit of the season.

Regardless, several outstanding ballplayers can be found on the team, and they could very well be the nucleus of a strong varsity club in years to come.

Dick Rudgers, a high scoring guard from Akron (Central High), may be the best of the lot. A 6-2, 180-pounder, Rudgers wound up the year as the team leader in just about every phase of the scoring department.

Hitting on 137 field goals of an attempted 297 (46 per cent) and connecting on 80 per cent of his free throws attempts, Rudgers topped the Baby Birds with a 19.5 points per game scoring average. His best shot is a jumper from 15 to 20 feet out, although he can drive well and is accurate from close range.

His fellow guard, a 6-2 product of Bowling Green High, is another whom Scholler may have high hopes for in the next three years.

Sid Rodeheffer, known perhaps more for his slick ballhandling and passing than anything, wound up the year as the Falcon's third leading scorer, connecting on 39 per cent from the field (82 of 210) and averaged 13.5 points a game. Rodeheffer's outstanding defensive work could also be a determining factor as to whether he breaks into next season's varsity lineup.

Perhaps the most perplexing problem facing coach Scholler will be what to do with the leading frosh rebounder and second leading scorer, 6-4 Mark Hoffman from Bellvue.

Hitting on 89 of 218 from the field, good for 41 per cent and 76 per cent free throw attempts, Hoffman is obviously a valuable man to have around.

But whether he is tall enough to do the same kind of rebounding job for Scholler that he did for frosh coach Bob Conibear (150 rebounds in 17 games), or if his outside shooting is good enough to allow him to be transferred to guard, remains to be seen.

Center Dick McCauley could be the sleeper of the crew. Coming on strong at season's end in both scoring and rebounding after a not-so-spectacular beginning, the 6-7 Macaulay could progress in much the same way that Al Dixon did for the varsity this year.

Macaulay, from Youngstown (Broadman High) connected on 41 per cent of his shots from the field and 70 per cent from the line for a six-point per game average and hauled down 140 rebounds.

Ohio U. Sinks Frosh Tankers

The Ohio University freshman sunk the Falcon frosh swimmers Saturday 46-31 as the Bowling Green team failed to either relay event.

Phil Watson led the Falcon team, collecting two first places in the freestyle events. Watson captured the 200-yard freestyle in 1:56.4 and swan the 100-yard freestyle in 51.9 seconds to place first in that event.

Diver Bill Smith scored 206.3 points to finish second while breaststroker - sprinter John Johnston claimed second in the 100-yard freestyle with a 52.8 clocking.

Mike Schoenhals tried the 200-yard breaststroke and came up with a win and a 2:27.8 timing. Schoenhals also came through with second place in the 200-yard individual medley, as covered the distance in 2:11.5.

Cox, Aston From TU; Fowlkes, Peirson Round Out First Five

Toledo's runner-up Rockets was the only squad to win two first team berths on the annual Mid-American Conference basketball squad announced today by Commissioner Bob James.

The selections were made by the MAC coaches.

Center Bob Aston of Pittsburgh and forward Jim Cox of Toledo were the two Rockets landing first team spots. They had paced MAC scorers until the final week of the season when BG's Walt Piatkowski overhauled them to win the individual crown by .8 of a point with an 18.92 average. Cox and Aston both finished with 18.83.

Stengel Elected To Hall Of Fame

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Casey Stengel was informed yesterday that he has been elected to baseball's Hall of Fame.

The news was given to him here where he trained the New York Yankees and New York Mets during part of his colorful career.

The 75-year-old diamond veteran was a unanimous choice of the eleven-man veterans' committee, headed by former baseball commissioner Ford Frick.

Stengel became eligible with-

Piatkowski, a 6-8 forward from Toledo who scored 227 points, was the only sophomore making the first team. Other choices were captain Jerry Peirson of Miami's champions and Ohio's Ken Fowlkes.

There were no unanimous choices.

Pierson was one of the league's top defensive performers and coach Dick Shrider usually assigned the 6-5 forward from Muncie, Ind., to the opposition's best scorer.

Fowlkes, a 6-4 junior from Columbus, led the Bobcats in scoring with a 17.3 mark and finished fifth in the league despite a broken foot that sidelined him in the last three games.

Heading the second team is sophomore hotshot Reggie Lacefield of Western Michigan. The 6-4 sharpshooter from Gary, Ind., was fourth among conference scorers with 17.9 points game.

Others named included Kent State's Fred Albrecht and Doug Sims, Marshall's Bob Redd and Miami's Jim Patterson.
